Intradermal Injection Simulator

RX-450

Description

- It features a forearm from the wrist to just below the elbow, where skin allergy testing is performed usually in clinical. So it can be used for intradermal injection practice.
- 58 Intradermal Injection Points for Skills Development Allows to reuse the same injection arm to experience the realism of practicing intradermal injection in the various locations on the forearm.
- Made of food-grade silicone material instead of PVC, making the texture of the intradermal injection arm softer and closer to the real skin
- Instant feedback: Small blisters or skin welt will appear instantly when the intradermal injection is correctly performed.
